Community Poetry Reading with Warren Artists Market

April 11th @ 3:00pm

In celebration of both National Library Week and National Poetry Month, local poet and member of Warren Artists Market Thomas Park will lead the community in reading works of poetry - original works or classics. This is an extraordinary occasion to celebrate the importance of poetry over the ages, from Sheppard songs to the digital age. It is also time to celebrate the influence of poetry and the poets in our culture and community while celebrating free speech, imagination, nature, and the things that make our home special. Your voice is important; your words are to be cherished. All are invited to come and listen - or, even better, read a poem themselves! Your voice is important; your words are to be cherished.
